Hundreds of Colors

by Nannette Sibley

There are hundreds of colors for almost any product you can think of. My husband and I are in the beginning stages of building a home. With nearly every aspect of the house there is a color choice to be made: interior and exterior paint, roofing, plumbing fixtures, flooring, counter-tops, appliances and the list goes on. There are even textures that you never give a second thought about, but they add a great deal to the look of a house.

Designing a public restroom building or other structure is really no different from designing a house. Think about it. There are so many different options by way of textures, finishes, and colors. For example, the concrete blocks used in a Romtec building's walls are available in split or smooth face, brown or gray color. There are also custom block textures and colors available. Exterior stucco finishes comes in a variety of textures and colors. Romtec offers our standard medium finish and "oatmeal" color, but you can choose many other stucco textures and colors. Sometimes there are costs associated with these options, but it's no different than our new house. Our contractor wants us to be happy with the end result (me too), and Romtec feels the same.

There are many exterior siding options: HardiPlank® fiber-cement, cedar lap, cedar board & batten, log, chinked plank and any number of combinations. Each of these offers a different look and texture. You can also choose the color of paint or stain for the siding.

Romtec also offers many styles of stone/masonry exterior finish for the building's entire wall surface or in combination with concrete block or siding for a truly custom look. Be sure to visit our website's Custom Design Center to see some of the choices available to you.

Roofing options are plentiful. Choose Romtec's standard delta-rib metal or upgrade to standing seam metal in a wide variety of colors. Maybe you prefer tile roofing or composition shingles or cedar shakes, tile, and the list goes on as well as the color options from our color charts.

For your building's interior, Romtec's epoxy wall finish texture and color will add greatly to the look and feel of the structure. Romtec typically calls out white but there are virtually unlimited colors from which to choose. What'll it be?

Really, I've just begun. Your very own building design can have many color and texture choices. My husband and I are having fun designing our new home with the colors and textures of our choice. You'll have fun with the design opportunities Romtec offers, too.
